Organisation of studies

Study module

Study programme is made of study modules that are taught for one semester. A study module may include various combinations of lectures, laboratory work, practice, seminars, the student's individual work, scientific research, design work or other type of work.

Study modules may be mandatory, alternative (selected from a list), general and optional (from the list of all University modules). Studies of each module are completed by an evaluation of the students' knowledge and skills – an examination or a different form of final assessment.

Study credit

Study workload is measured in study credits. Study credit is a unit for assessing study results and student's working time. 1,600 hours of one year of studies correspond to 60 credits. One study credit is equal to one credit of European credit transfer and accumulation system (ECTS).

Assessment system

University measures students' results by intermediate assessments. Final grade is the sum of the results of intermediate assessments and the final assessment.

A student is allowed to participate in the final assessment only if all intermediate assessments were submitted.

Class times
0	7.45-8.45*
I	9.00-10.30
II	11.00-12.30
III	13.30-15.00
IV	15.30-17.00
V	17.30-19.00
VI	19.15-20.45

*mandatory, optional and bridging
English courses for first cycle freshers

Find your timetable, assessment evaluation and other relevant information about studies in the Academic Information System (AIS).

Tuition fees

In the University, tuition fees are applied for:

- studying in non-state-funded places;
- retaking separate study modules;
- studying additional modules that are not included in your study programme;
- retaking the intermediate or final module assessment for a second time;
- retaking a module in the following semester due to have not passed the final module assessment.

Attendance

It is mandatory to attend laboratory works. The attendance requirements for other type of classes (theory, practice, etc.) are set by each teacher. In the first class of the module, teacher introduces the minimal attendance requirements, which are published in the modules' description in the AIS. Disciplinary penalties are applied to students who do not attend classes under the determined procedure.

Academic help

Complex academic support is provided to our students:

- „GUIDed“ mentorship programme;
- individual teachers' consultations.

Academic honesty

The base of the culture of your University is academic values and principles of ethics. Academic honesty is one of the most important academic University values. Remember that no form of cheating in attempt to get a grade for your individual semester tasks and no form of cheating in final assessments are tolerated. Dishonest conduct has consequences – in case of receiving an academic penalty, you consequently losing the right to retake your assessments. Having breached the Code of Academic Ethics the student could be expelled from the University.

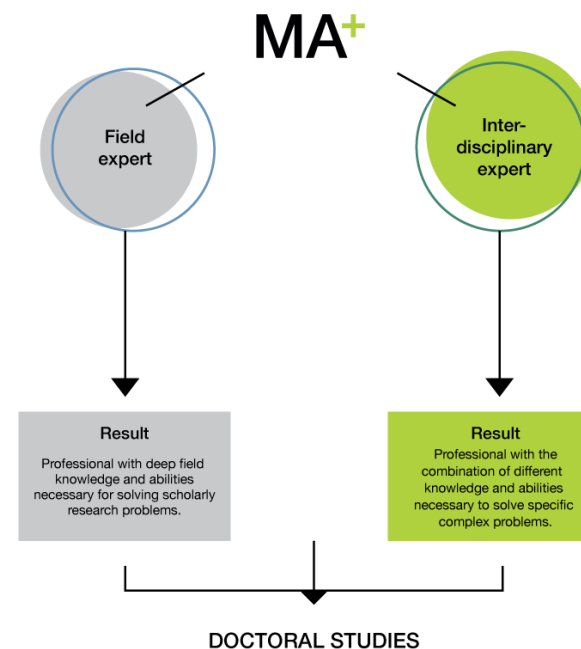

All study regulations and documents can be found in KTU students' intranet Office365. Students must get acquainted with recent and relevant orders and documents and follow their changes.

Some futuristic visions may hold bright and unnerving feelings, many discuss about the future encounter of smart technologies on our society. In my opinion, one of the main tasks of our University today and in the future is to develop and create the synergy of modern technologies and the community. Also, discover the most advanced methods to solve Earth's and society's significant problems.
